

Exploring Everyday Lives in Early Michigan

A workshop for educators

Spend two days at the Michigan Historical Museum learning how people, from Michigan's earliest inhabitants to the settlers who built a state, have lived and worked on our two peninsulas.

Who: Designed for teachers, community education partners, home school parents, local historical society educators and preservice teachers. Brought to you by the Michigan Historical Center and the Michigan History Foundation.

What: This workshop uses hands-on lessons in the galleries of the Michigan Historical Museum to help you engage your students in new ways as they study Michigan's past. We'll use timelines and maps to situate learning in time and space. The group will produce several 3-D timelines that can become cumulative lessons or assessments in your classroom.

When: This two-day workshop takes place over two Saturdays, March 5 and March 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Where: Michigan Historical Center in Lansing

Cost: $70 or register by February 11 for a discounted rate of $60

Register at www.teachingmichigan.eventbrite.com.

Deadline is February 18.

Exploring Everyday Lives in Early Michigan

A workshop for educators

Spend two days at the Michigan Historical Museum learning how people, from Michigan's earliest inhabitants to the settlers who built a state, have lived and worked on our two peninsulas.

Who: Designed for teachers, community education partners, home school parents, local historical society educators and preservice teachers. Brought to you by the Michigan Historical Center and the Michigan History Foundation.

What: This workshop uses hands-on lessons in the galleries of the Michigan Historical Museum to help you engage your students in new ways as they study Michigan's past. We'll use timelines and maps to situate learning in time and space. The group will produce several 3-D timelines that can become cumulative lessons or assessments in your classroom.

When: This two-day workshop takes place over two Saturdays, March 5 and March 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Where: Michigan Historical Center in Lansing

Cost: $70 or register by February 11 for a discounted rate of $60

Register at www.teachingmichigan.eventbrite.com.

Deadline is February 18.

